Remains Found:
Mississippi River in St. Louis, Mo.

On April 21, 1987, the decomposed body of a black male was recovered from the Mississippi River near St. Louis, Mo. Time since death was probably one week. The man was wearing a blue jacket, blue jeans, black belt, white socks, white thermal underwear bottoms, a black jacket, and athletic gray high top sneakers. He had a mustache and beard. He was also wearing a brass belt buckle with the words "Job Corps" inscribed. Probable cause of death was drowning.
